PUBLISHED BY THE CLASS OF JUNE, 1941
WEST SIDE HIGH SCHOOL
NEWARK ♦ ♦ ♦ NEW JERSEY

F O R E W O R D

The world is often spoken of as the stage of life. Each sunrise opens the curtain and each twilight closes it. Nature is the scenery and we are the actors upon this stage. Everyone of us plays a part. Whether we be a leading character or a supporting actor matters little, for each individual performance is needed for the completion of the play. We all strive to gain prominence before the footlights. However, some of us attain greater success than others.

During the past four years at West Side, we have been rehearsing our parts. We have listened to our instructions attentively and have been taught well. We are now prepared to make our debut in this glorious production. Let this book be our cue.

DEDICATION

We, the class of June 1941, wish to dedicate this yearbook to our parents and teachers who have been so patient in preparing us for the stage of life. Let us offer our deepest appreciation for their valuable advice and their sincere interest in our future welfare.

THE WESTERN TRAIL

(To the Class of June, 1941)

*As evidence, here's your diploma
All neatly rolled and tied;
With your name in beautiful English script
And properly certified.*

*You've made this stage of the journey,
Now your eye is fixed on the crest,
Where dim in the haze of To-morrow
Stretches the road to the West.*

*And what lies over the hilltop?
Mountain and river and plain;
Reward and punishment blended,
Success — and struggle — and pain.*

*What reward? What success? What struggle?
Ah, that no one can detect.
But you'll find them all lying in waiting
And none just what you expect.*

*Here's wishing you luck on your Journey;
This venture you take on your own;
For no matter how many are with you
Each travels the Long Trail alone.*

*So hold up your chin and step briskly
Light-hearted and blithe at the start.
May you swing down the end of the Journey
With a valorous song in your heart.*

The Senators are: Evelyn Anderson, Martha Collins, Rose Donatiello, John Duffy, Albert Geraci, Ruth Heist, Naomi Lutz, Catherine McDonald, Patricia Monahan, Constance Posella, Fred Schaller, Alex Weiss, William Williams.

SPORTS IN THE SPOTLIGHT

West Side has focused a spotlight on athletics as well as scholarship. We are proud of the fine records which our athletic squads have attained in every field that they have entered. Our school has had the honor of holding several championship titles in various sports. This year the Rough Riders have carried on the traditions of all former West Side teams.

TRACK

This Spring, track was outstanding in the minds of the students of West Side, because the green and white speedsters spurred themselves on to remarkable feats on the cinder path. The glory of their achievements in the Dickenson and Sunday Call Meets should be showered not only on the team but on their worthy coach, Mr. Baumann, who has ably taken the place of Mr. Reed. Individual honors went to Captain Leonard Watson, who captured the National Scholastic Shotput Championship.

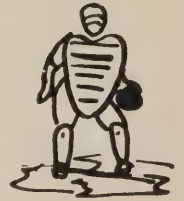

TENNIS

During the past year, tennis has been definitely established at West Side. The brilliant playing of our netsters last year captured ten out of sixteen matches, and also annexed the co-championship of the city. Outstanding was the performance of Hyman Hait, who won the City Singles Championship. Coupled with Albert Geraci, he also went on to capture the doubles title. A successful season has just been completed by our racket swingers.

BASEBALL

After a year's absence, the revival of baseball was most heartily accepted by the student body and faculty. The West Side Rough Riders, under the guidance of Mr. Reilly and Mr. McEntee, have established a brilliant record for themselves in this sport in the past. Mr. Weinstein, a new member of the faculty, has taken over the coaching of baseball. Under his leadership, the boys gave a performance worthy of former West Side squads.

SWIMMING

Splashing past their opponents, our mermen reigned as city champions for the fourth successive year. Engulfing their opposition in a great tidal wave, our natators scored in practically every entry in the City Meet. Under the guidance of Coach Dispenzieri, the boys completed an excellent record for the season. Special honors should be extended to Robert Sherman and George Gottfried for their outstanding performances.

FOOTBALL

The close of the 1940 football season found West Side High among the state's triumphant elevens. Besides being the outstanding squad in Essex County, the Rough Riders also won the City Co - Championship with South Side and ranked sixth in the Colliton rating. Next season Mr. Naporano, who has been recently transferred to West Side, will act as coach. We are confident that he will ably fill the position vacated by Mr. Liddy.

THE SENIOR SHOW

"KATHLEEN"

Some day in the future, when you are turning over these thumb-worn pages, remember that it was the Senior Show that enabled you to have a most unforgettable experience.

When the houselights on the memorable nights of May 2 and 3 were dimmed and the curtains were parted, the scene depicted one of the typical horse and buggy towns of the United States, Flynnville, Massachusetts. The story was centered around the love affair of a young grocery clerk and a vivacious Irish miss. Lively solos and colorful choruses were interwoven with sparkling comedy into the plot. All of these combined to make "Kathleen" a tremendous success.

THE MEASLES

As One Measle Spot to Another

With a silent roar the "Spotted Hoard" roared down to a landing in West Side High's auditorium.

"Shall we attack at once?" asked Five Spot.

"I'm just itching to get started," answered Two Spot.

"Very well then, we choose you to reach the first objective," said the commanding officer. "Do you see the blonde they call Arabella?"

"Do I? Wow!"

"Enough said. Go get her!"

Two Spot circled around his objective and then itched on to her.

"Look!" said Five Spot. "He got her! They're demoralized now, so let's get a few of the chorus."

"We'll go," said Three Spot and Ten Spot.

Quickly they "spotted" two members of the chorus and itched on.

"Our attack is working," said Four Spot. "Let's get our biggest objective, the leader of their forces, Kathleen."

"Let's all dive on her at once," said Eight Spot. "Everyone attack!"

With that they took off and landed on Kathleen.

"Look," said the commanding officer, "they are retreating into the nurse's office. The battle is over, and we've won!"

REHEARSAL RAVINGS

It is our sincere wish that these little "bits" of sketches will recall in the future the fun we had during the rehearsals for the Senior Show "Kathleen." Now picture to yourself a spacious auditorium with groups of Seniors intermingled here and there with rows of empty seats. Let's quietly open the back auditorium door with this view in mind, and take a peek at . . .

Tony Orsini, the football flash, learning how to waltz . . . Bill Williams remarking "Gosh, if my father could see me now," as he puts his arm around Selma Feldman . . . Mr. Spear saying for the 100th time "Do you have the money?" . . . Florence Mallinson asking "Who wants anything from Sol's?" and being swamped with replies . . . Ruth Heist, very quiet for a change because of laryngitis, trying to tell Manny Fraller something about "after the show" . . . Alex Weiss looking very self-conscious in his routine with the "Shy Maids" . . . Larry Maisel skipping across the stage with Martha Collins dragging along behind him, trying to finish her knitting on the way . . . Bertha Smolin starting off a dance routine on the wrong foot . . . The measles occupying all the auditorium seats, ready to have their fun . . . Ralph Lombardi playing a Conga on the piano during a five minute intermission, and Florence Lisena trying to get someone to dance with her before he stops . . . Carmela Grassia poking Joe Haas in the ribs when the time comes for him to join her in a duet . . . Jerry Friedman and Burton Garber playing chess, and Dorothy Schmidt standing watching with a peculiar expression on her face that is supposed to denote understanding, but which everyone takes to be puzzlement . . . Olga Petzko wearing Al Ready's jacket and trying to help him figure out where the money for the Senior Show went to . . . Miss Quinn ordering the Freshmen to stay out of the auditorium . . . Dave Leisten and Ed Hopkins laughing at Herbert Greenfield trying to hold onto his partner, do a dance routine, drink a bottle of soda, eat a hot dog, and keep out of the coach's way, all at the same time . . . Naomi Lutz and Molly Feeney wondering which leg to kick first in their dance routine, and Jack Duffy laughing at them from a front row seat . . . Mildred Heyman, Rhoda Kuchinsky and Renee Karelock harmonizing in the middle of the auditorium and getting angry looks from our coach . . . The tennis players looking like anything but tennis players . . . Fred Schaller covering the back auditorium doors with newspapers (courtesy of Al Geraci) and always managing to forget one pane of glass . . . Mike Sandor surrounded with girls, and everyone asking him how he does it . . . Vic Rosen doing his "Hick from the Sticks" skit and evoking laughs before he starts . . . Dorothy Clayton passing her "slam book" around with everyone contributing "a dig" for everyone else (Boy, you should see that book!) . . . Hyman Hait playing the first three chords of an operatic piece, and then with a silly grin on his face switching off into a two-fingered rendition of "Chopsticks" . . . We had better get now before they see this open door . . .

That struts and frets his hour upon the stage
And then is heard no more."*

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

On Thursday afternoon, May 3, 1951, things were happening fast and furiously at the "Bridge and Knitting Club." The President, Mrs. (MARY PREZIOSI) Noll, had invited Senator RENEE KARELOCK, to attend the gathering and renew some old acquaintances. Senator Karelock's appearance was enough to cause excitement but when she revealed her discovery, that the new musical comedienne, Marovina, was in reality CARMELA GRASSIA, all sign of order was lost. JOSEPHINE BRZOZAWSKI rushed to telephone the Forty-Sixth Street Theatre, to order tickets for the coming show, "Maureen," starring Marovina. Although, at first it seemed that they would have to wait weeks for reservations, Senator Karelock solved the problem. She promised the publicity manager of the show, HERBERT HONIG, that she would bring the leading candidate for President of the United States, HENRY LEFSKY, to act as a drawing card.

On the night of the premier, the club members met in front of the theatre. While walking through the lobby, the party encountered the wealthy president of "Consolidated Can Company," DAVE LEISTEN, who was proudly escorting his fiancée ROSE ROTONDA.

They were shown to their seats by the beautiful usherette, KATHARINE McDONALD. The party was surprised to find that in the next row was the famous lawyer, RALPH LOMBARDI, with two of his clients, RUTH HEIST and JANE SAUERWEIN. Ralph was delighted to hear that CONCETTA STRANO had read and enjoyed GERARD TIVEN-AN'S best seller, "Biography of ROSE GIANNOTTA." PETER HARTER, who is now an officer in the United States Coast Guard, mentioned that he had read somewhere that all of the advertising for the show had been under the direction of BILL WILLIAMS and THOMAS SMITH and that the cover of the program for the show had been designed by BETTY KOHAUT.

As Baron V. J. ROSEN, recently appointed minister from Fantasia, came strutting down the aisle with a very dignified air, ELISSA DELLA VOLLE, one of his admirers, made such a commotion, that officer ROBERT REGAN was forced to arrest her. At the sight of the handsome young adonis in uniform, Elissa forgot her escort, CHARLES DEL VESCOVO, and gladly went with the officer.

On the way out, however, Regan relented and they both sat down to see the show. They were enthusiastically greeted by JOSEPH HAAS, who had been seriously injured in the Olympic swimming meet. There was no cause for alarm, for that beautiful nurse, HELEN BARRY, was on hand to restore Joe back to normal condition. With him was JACK DUFFY, newly graduated law student and BARBARA KRALL, his private secretary. Let me tell you that they flew from Hollywood to Newark to be present for the opening. Barbara related that on the plane she talked to the young stewardess, EDNA HEYDER; the newest football idol, TONY ORSINI, and his fiancée, JOSEPHINE BATTIATO; and SHIRLEY CRANSTON, who was taking a vacation from her strenuous job as prima ballerina at the "Ballet Russe."

Just then the usherette, MARIE FARSTAD, hurried down the aisle calling for Dr. PAT DANIELS, since one of his patients, RUTH BUEHRER, had contracted a severe case of measles. On the way back up the aisle, she stopped to speak to ELEANOR GELDHAUSER and ROSE GELLER, those two inseparable friends, who had gone into partnership and now own their own newspaper. With them were two of their ace reporters, NORMAN SCHWARTZ, whose daily column "Our Fascinating Animal Friends" was nationally famous, and ROSE DONATIELLO, whose "Aunt Rose's Broken Hearts Club" was equally popular. Marie told them that Mr. and Mrs. WILLIAM SHERIDAN had invited all their friends to a theatre party at their penthouse after the show.

All chattering subsided when the orchestra leader, ROBERT SCOTT stepped onto the podium and raised his baton. He smiled at his former schoolmates, LEVON BARMAKIAN, JOSEPH ZITO, JOE GIANCASPRO and ROCCO FERRARELLI and others who were now playing in his orchestra. As the overture began more and more attention was drawn to the trio of girls, JOYCE BECKINGHAM, KATHLEEN FLANAGAN, and DORIS ABEL, who were playing their harps.

Then with the resounding final chord the stirring overture was finished. The soft folds of the green and white velvet curtains parted to reveal the beautiful stage setting which was received with such enthusiasm that its creator, RUDOLPH COCCHIARELLA, was assured that his work had not been in vain. With a flying leap DAN SILBERG landed on the apron of the stage and boisterously began to sing the hilarious "Whip Me Poppa Six to the Measure," a new song hit composed by IDA VITALE. Considerable improvement was noted in Danny's voice because of the installation of the recently invented sound system for producing the same properties in a theatre as are found in a boiler room. This remarkable invention has just been put on the market by the famed concert star, Mademoiselle Edith Gishé who was known at West Side as EDITH STOFFER.

As Danny finished, another curtain rose and the audience's attention was drawn to an old fashioned swing, where Marovina, the star of the show, was sitting with her leading man, ALBERT READY, singing a love song in perfect harmony. With this entrancing beginning, the story unfolded. At the fifth curtain call, to shouts of "Author!" "Author!" from the audience, the author MANNY FRALLER was forced onto the stage to accept part of the hard earned credit.

Hoping to meet old friends, many of the theatre goers hurried backstage. Amidst the turmoil that prevailed there, they were surprised to find JANIE MESSER, the heiress to the Van Manmouth millions. Also the crowd was amused to find BERNIE HERSHKOWITZ conscientiously delivering flowers and notes to the stars. Bernie took this position to be nearer his wife, JOYCE BECKINGHAM. Exhausted with thrills, the theatre goers piled into their cars and headed for the party where everyone recalled the good old days back in West Side High.
